

Scope e-Knowledge Center achieves 1 millionth patent processing landmark

Chennai, India, February 3, 2009: Scope e-Knowledge Center, a leading content and knowledge services company, has achieved the milestone of delivering the 1 millionth abstract of patent documents for one of its clients, a major information and business intelligence provider. Further, Scope has recently met an additional client need by adding the capability to abstract non-English language patent documents, including French, German, Chinese, Korean and Japanese.

"This milestone has been achieved by our best practices in project management, assisted automation and agile processes," said R.Sivadas, CEO of Scope. "As a consequence, we have consistently ensured rapid turnaround, high scalability and global quality levels over the past five years".

Scope launched its patent abstraction services in 2003, processing 150 abstracts per week. It has successfully scaled its capability to more than 15,000 patents per week, with drastically reduced turnaround time.

Scope has a large pool of highly experienced and trained engineers across major engineering domains, including Mechanical, Electrical & Electronics, Communication & Computers, Semiconductors, Instrumentation, Transportation and Industrial Engineering, who partner with well qualified English language editors to deliver the final product. Scope provides content and knowledge services, including document abstracting and indexing, in other domains including all branches of chemistry, pharmaceuticals, business, and healthcare.

Scope is uniquely positioned to offer accurate and high value added services through an optimal mix of technology, subject matter/domain expertise and the use of proprietary knowledge repositories and processes.
